

What Is Claimed Is

1. In a nestable cup and lid combination comprising:

a cup having a frustroconical wall, a closed bottom and an open top,

and a lid configured to close the open top of the cup,

the improvement comprising:

a recess in the wall of the cup configured to receive the lid and such said lid being formed of a flexible material and being positioned in the recess in the wall of the cup.

2. The combination of Claim 1 wherein the cup wall in the vicinity of said recess is configured to releasably retain the lid in the recess.

3. The combination of Claim 1 further comprising a flexible tether connecting the lid

to the cup near the open end of the cup.

4. The combination of Claim 2 further comprising a flexible tether connecting the lid

to the cup near the open end of the cup.

5. The combination of Claim 1 further comprising a tab on the lid facilitating removal of the lid from the recess in the cup wall.

6. The combination of Claim 2 further comprising a tab on the lid facilitating removal of the lid from the recess in the cup wall.

7. The combination of Claim 3 further comprising a tab on the lid facilitating removal of the lid from the recess in the cup wall.

8. The combination of Claim 2 wherein both the cup and the lid are formed of thin wall plastic material.